

Ecospirituality

Ecospirituality is a ministry of the Anglican Diocese of Willochra run primarily in the iconic Flinders Ranges.

Participating in the Ecospirituality Programme offers quiet time away from the trappings of normal daily life and is an excellent way for us to deepen our connection with our Creator God.

A spiritual director brings a programme of reading, discussions and devotions allowing participants to reflect on their own spirituality in a beautiful natural environment.

The Ministry of Ecospirituality welcomes everyone.

Our first experience for 2019: "Finding God in the Wilderness" will be held from 27th of May to the 1st of June arriving around 4pm Monday and departing 9 am on Saturday.

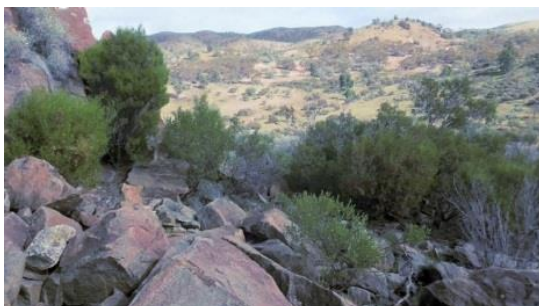

We will be based at Alpana Station a heritage sheep property. Its central location makes it an ideal venue to explore many aspects of the Flinders Ranges.

We will look at geological highlights of Brachina and Glass Gorges. Sally Henery, from Alpana Station, will give us a rundown of station life with the option of joining her on a ridge-top tour. Nearby, Blinman offers us the chance to learn about early copper mining, sample historic Cornish pasties and yummy quandong pies and explore colonial heritage sites.

Importantly, there will be time for personal reflection and exploration.

The cost of the program is $650.00. Closing date April 18th, 2019.

For further information please contact Reverend David Thompson or Reverend Jennifer Thompson, Coordinators, Ministry of Ecospirituality email ecospirituality@diowillcohra.org.au or 8842 2835 to leave a message with your contact details.